

ALLIED ULTIMATUM TO GERMANY DEMANDS NEW OFFER BY MONDAY

Otherwise the Allied Troops Will Advance, Establish Customs Stations and Tax German Exports--Germans Promise New Reply on Monday to Allied Demands.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, March 3.—An allied ultimatum was served upon the Germans today that they must present more suitable proposals on indemnity before noon next Monday or Allied troops will advance into Germany. It was officially announced by the French delegation to the indemnity conference this afternoon.

If the Germans fail to meet the allied indemnity demands or to tender counter proposals more satisfactory than those presented on Tuesday the allies will put into effect the following compulsory measures:

- 1—Occupy Duisburg, Ruhrort and Düsseldorf in the German coal and industrial belt in West Prussia.
- 2—Each of the allies will put a tax on German exports.
- 3—A line of customs stations will be established by the allies along the Rhine.

When the conference opened, Lloyd-George gave the allies' reply to the Germans' proposals of Tuesday, rejecting them. It was believed that Premier Briand and Count Sforza, Italian foreign minister, would follow the British prime minister in outlining the positions taken by France and Italy.

The Germans were bluntly informed that the allies do not desire to waste any more time. The Germans were accused of "vexatious evasion of the peace treaty." They

we were told that they had not paid the money required of them; that they had not supplied the coal in quantities specified by the Spa protocol and that they had not brought their war

GERMAN CITIES

ALLIES THREATEN

The crowds about St. James Palace stood silent as four motor cars bearing the German delegates drove up for the meeting. Dr. Walter Simons, German foreign minister and head of the German delegation, was pale and agitated. When Premier Lloyd-George and

Dr. Simons consented to pose for a photograph. As he stood before the camera men he was asked what he thought Germany would take over in Europe.

Another of the German delegates replying for the foreign minister said that no new proposals had been drawn up.

It was reported that the Germans had arranged to leave London within 36 hours. The manager of the Savoy Hotel, where the Germans have been stopping said that he had been notified by the German delegates that they would depart some time tomorrow.

Dr. Simons replied on behalf of the Gorman delegation to the ultimatum delivered by Premier Lloyd-George. He was very brief, speaking in a cold voice and using short, curt phrases.

The following lodges held regul

The meeting broke up at 2 o'clock. The delegates were grave and solemn as they departed from the palace.

Premier Lloyd-George told the Germans that France has spent in a year $12,000,000,000 francs on the areas devastated by the invading armies. The premier recited in detail the damage done both to France and Belgium. He declared that France and England are each bearing annually a burden three times the sum that Germany proposes as the total sum of her war indemnity. "What you offer is only one quarter of the sum required to repair the damage in the devastated areas alone regardless of other war burdens, Premier Lloyd-George told the Germans.

The premier accused Germany of deliberately violating the treaty of Versailles. He denied the German contention that he desires oppression of Germany, adding:

On the contrary, I regard a free, contented and prosperous Germany as essential to civilization. We were prepared to make every allowance to you but these counter proposals are an offense and an insult to the American people. I am, Sir, very respectfully, operation and I deplore that they never were made. The proposals show and make it evident that Germany desires not to discharge but evade her liabilities."

The British premier charged that Germany was sufficiently taxing the German people. Then he recounted all the German infractions of the treaty, including even the clandestine time military organizations formed in Germany.

Mr. Simmons in his reply said the Germans would study the documents presented by the Allies and deliver

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE SAD BROWNIE.

When the girl and the boy were adventuring along the road they began to get a very fine opinion of themselves—and not only that, they didn't act in the least like a regular boy and girl, but they acted as though—well! You'll hear for yourselves how they acted!

"Ah," said the girl, "this road is very bumpy, but then it is interesting. I am constantly seeing all sorts of quaint things, curious little creatures, funny little plants, and, too, it seems to me that the sun shines down more brightly upon this road than upon the Road Commonplace which we took once by mistake."

"I say we have some food," said the boy after a few minutes.

"Yes," said the girl, "for we had quite an exciting time in the woods when we found we almost went the wrong way, and I'm very hungry."

So the boy took his knapsack from his back and they undid the luncheon. It was extremely good. There were delicious sandwiches and some jam and some good, cool brook water which had been put in a crystal bottle.

There was also some candy.

"I hope it isn't magic candy, which can disappear when it wants to," said the boy.

"What a horrible thought," said the girl. "Why did you have to think up such a terrible thought about the candy? It would have been better if you had thought it about the sandwiches, though for that matter the sandwiches are what I most want at the moment. I'm so extremely hungry."

They sat down and ate their luncheon and pecked into the basket and saw three other packages, one with a card attached which said:

"For supper this evening," and the second package said:

"For breakfast tomorrow morning."

And there was a third package which was marked, "Extra goodies for extra times." This had all been fixed for the adventures by Mrs. Wood Elf.

"She was nice," said Mrs. Wood Elf, "I am going to be very careful to like only nice people and I'm going to make no mistakes, and I'm going to think of serious things and not behave in a foolish way."

"Why, I'm even going to enjoy things when they're hard, for I'll be feeling they are doing me great good."

"Maybe we will find the House of Secrets that way sooner," agreed the boy.

"Well, let's be off," said the girl a little later, as she wiped her mouth with one of Mrs. Wood Elf's leaf napkins. "You are through, aren't you?"

"All through," said the boy.

Just then they heard a sobbing. It sounded very near.

They walked along a little way, looking in the direction from which the sobbing came.

"Oh, it's a poor little creature, a little bit of a brownie, or something of the sort," said the girl. "See, he is hidden behind this stone."

"I'm hidden because you made me so small," said the little brownie. "You aren't behaving like a regular boy or a regular girl at all, and it breaks my heart!"

"What in the world was, or is, the matter with you?"

"Do you always stay behind that stone where we found you and so never get a chance to grow, but make folks wait on you and spoil you like a little goose we once met?" asked the girl.

"No," said the brownie, "I'm no relation to that goose at all."

"We're having adventures," said the boy, "and we're going to the House of Secrets. I hope you're feeling better now, little air."

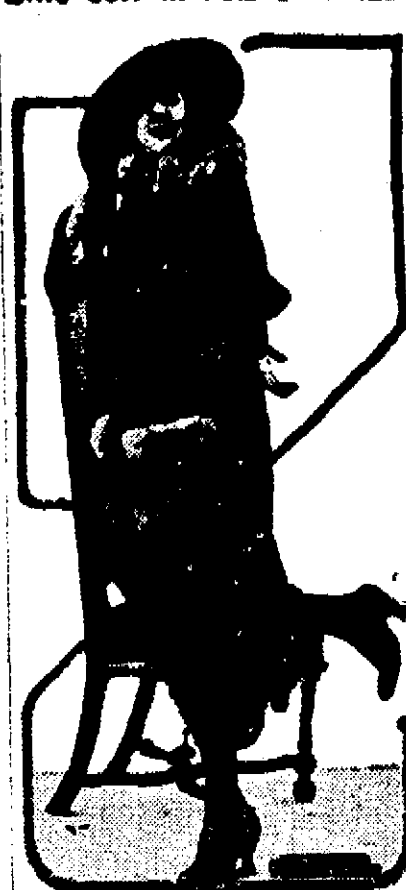

"Oh dear! Oh dear! Oh dear!" sobbed the brownie again, and burst into fresh tears.

"This is a nuisance," said the boy. "A better brownie," said the girl. "I believe he is just doing that because we said we were going on as he had said his part."

"You said the brownie, 'Only I've grown small because you've talked to it if you didn't want to be brownie. There's one of the most important things in life, and what's more, do things that are hard because you won't let them get the best of you—because it makes you feel on ground if you're not! I'll grow big again if you become careful!'"

Which he did!

CREPE DE CHINE IS FAVORED

Popularity of Fabric Past Season Indicates That It Will Be the Standby for 1921.

Paris has a way of developing a fashion which, seemingly unimportant at its inception, often becomes a dominating feature of such importance that it develops into a world-wide movement. During the last year there has been gradually developing a strong feeling in favor of crepe de chine in preference to almost any other silk fabric. This simple and not at all dressy material came almost without herald as a medium for developing semidressy toilets.

Several well-known makers, such as Chanel, Miller, Soeurs and Rolande, emphasized crepe de chine in their spring collections. Some of the larger and perhaps more important houses, such as Collet, Chermil and Madeleine et Madeleine, while they showed crepe de chine in their collections, did not make an emphatic point of it, but talked rather of more novelty fabrics.

But when the Parisienne began to buy her summer wardrobe it was early manifested that crepe de chine was to have a big vogue. Before mid-summer arrived it was not only the crepe de chine dress, but it was the crepe de chine cape that carried the palm for summer success. In the fall collections of the houses who had early success with crepe de chine, an increasing number of models in this material was shown. Crepe de chine was used for foundations of dresses of lace and metal novelties in preference to satins. New fall mantles of tissues and of furs began to be lined with crepe de chine.

All of this is most significant from a standpoint of distribution. It looks as if crepe de chine may be the big seller in 1921, taking the place to no small degree of voiles, tulle and foulards.

GINGHAM CHECKS AND COLOR

Fabrics Quite Vivid in Tone and Plaidings Are Fascinating in Their Peculiar Way.

Ginghams are particularly good in color and plaidings. The plain colored ones are quite vivid in tone and those made of small or large checks are fascinating in their particular way. Then there are cotton Japanese crepes, which are quite inexpensive and which have added to this season in colors that have not been obtainable for many seasons past. Linens are still very scarce and expensive, but they can be had by the fastidious by the expenditure of large sums of money.

Difficulties have been most marvelously developed and they bid fair to be one of the successful cottons of the coming season. Already blouses made from them are being shown over the counters and many are the favorable comments that are casually passed about them. There is a freshness about dinks which has its own charm and beauty no rival. It does wash well and is guaranteed to keep its color as well if not better than others of the sheerer fabrics.

Safety Pocket.

A safety pocket that is easily attached to a corset and which is not only beautiful, but safer than the old-fashioned skin bag for carrying jewelry in, is made of rubber. It is shaped like a dress shield and is placed over the corset near the arm. One side, on which is the pocket, is under the corset and the other side lays over. The flap has a clasp on it, which connects with the pocket itself, through the corset cloth.

To Sew Lace Edge.

When you wish to sew lace or edging to fabric, place the lace on the wrong side of the fabric, then place the lace with its edge to the right side of the fabric, just as you would do when it is by hand, and stitch it on by machine, holding the lace a little full and the needle tight, then giving the required fullness without bending. Then turn up the hem and stitch.

Never to Be Trusted.

"Optimistic promises," remarked a young Southern, "formed one of the three wishes in fairy tales in the early days. There's always a 'but' in 'em somewhere.'"

No Girl Too Poor To Attend This Famous Carolina School

Carolina Mountain girls learning carpentering so that they will be able to build book cases and thus be encouraged to obtain books and in that way improve their homes.

If you were a poor girl in the mountains of North Carolina and wanted a college education, what would you do about it?

Where crops are light the educational system is not likely to be extensive. The soil of the Carolina mountains is not very productive. Boards of education have little money to spend.

Presbyterian women offer these mountain girls a normal school education, and take them at the age of 4. At Asheville, N. C., are three boarding schools for girls of different ages, under the care of the Woman's Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A. The girls are charged $100 a year for board, tuition, room and board. If they haven't the $100, efforts are made to help them, and the balance of the cost of running the school with its 350 girls is paid by church women.

Asheville Normal School is the school of highest grade of the three Presbyterian institutions at this famous health resort. The girls are taught the usual subjects, and in addition many things from carpentering to book binding.

First Better Student Grade. The first better student graduated was made in London in 1920. These and other models brought out later could be graded in course only at the expense of enormous taxation. It was not until 1920 that an American brought out a better grade than these carved and shaped such as these possible on the earth.

REPRESENTING AT LEISURE.

The decision of the United States Supreme court on Monday that the sections of the Lever Act punishing profiteering were invalid because they did not specify sufficiently the nature of the crime again illustrates the danger of hastily prepared legislation. The section which undertakes to describe what is unlawful does not, in the opinion of the court, forbid any specific or definite act.

At Albany the legislature has been engaged in considering bills for prohibition enforcement. Attention frequently has been called by The Freeman to a few of the many objectionable features of the bills. Within the past ten days legislators have discovered that these features have raised protests from all parts of the state and this has been supplemented by competent authority that many of the provisions could not be enforced. These facts alone demonstrate the necessity of careful consideration of proposed laws, instead of which the legislature rushes headlong to the consideration of compromises or substitutes which have received even less thought than the objectionable features which will be eliminated.

Legislative bills do not always originate with the man who stands sponsor for them. Associations and individuals everywhere conceive the idea of putting a new law in effect and promptly procure the introduction of the bill in one or both houses of the legislature. The fact that a man can ordinarily express himself clearly does not indicate that he has ability to draft legislation. Particularly in this time where the proposed legislation attempts to define a crime or misdemeanor and fix the punishment.

Certain rights of the individual are declared by the Declaration of Independence to be inalienable and therefore they were written in the Federal Constitution and the Constitutions of the various states. Under our form of government the courts alone determine whether laws adopted by the legislature or by Congress trespass on the rights of citizens. The courts safeguard such rights and all laws must conform to certain well-defined principles before they are capable of enforcement by the executive branch of the government. The fact that somebody wants a bill passed and says it will be a good thing is not sufficient justification for its introduction in any legislative body. Yet that is the practice too often followed.

More thought and less talk would result in better and more effective laws. The practical application of a law, its constitutionality, method of enforcement and penalties receive less attention than they should. Bills may become party measures or the sponsor may become so imbued with the desire to achieve personal victory that compromises by which they would become practical are made impossible. In that way good bills may be killed and bad bills may become laws. It is only when somebody contests the law that it is determined whether the law is valid or not. Governors and their legal advisers generally try to prevent the enactment of invalid legislation but in the rush sometimes accompanying the close of a legislative session they cannot always avoid pitfalls or errors. Sufficient consideration of proposed legislation at the beginning would avoid much subsequent trouble.

A Harvard University professor denounces the hair-brush as a breeding place for disease germs affecting the scalp and hair. He is right, unquestionably. Pictures of Michaelson are not available, but many pictures have been painted and drawn of Noah who lived to a ripe old age, none of which indicate that he ever used a brush. He had a few crops of hair. It is certain that the brush was unknown to the men whose heads were shaved and whose hair was cut in the form of a pompadour. So is the hair-brush. So-called sanitary hair-brushes are a delusion. It is up to somebody to discover a sanitary hair-brush cleaner. But if anybody would return to the habits of the race men in caring for the hair, not caring for it—there would be no hair-brush. It is strange, however, that women who are particularly addicted to the use of the hair-brush seem to belie the Harvard professor's claim.

FEMINISM'S WARNING.

Curiosity as to what the feminists will do when they get ready is stirred up by the announcement of Miss Beatie Beatty, a magazine editor of New York. She warns the country that before long her sex will "shock the world by saying what they think and then doing it." What do they think and what are they going to do? Miss Beatty is indefinite, but intimates that it will be startling enough to take the country's breath away. She says European feminists are more infants, still in the elementary class, compared with herself and her American associates. Apparently these "advanced" women will not take the trouble to abolish the churches, for in their view that is virtually accomplished already. Miss Beatty observing that she has met but one lone man who still goes to church. Nor do they seem to expect to abolish marriage, however desirable they may be in their attitude toward any formal ceremony, for Miss Beatty incidentally remarks that arrangements must be made so that husbands shall do half of the house work.

That they do not intend to abolish children is less clearly indicated, for Miss Beatty demands to know how women with professions can work and have children too. If no children is the startling revolution Miss Beatty and her associates have in view, they have left off rather more than they can ever chew, for their real fight will not be against men but the great majority of women. Doubtless Miss Beatty's warning is largely the mere pose of the part of a few radicals better provided with daring than with either ideas or sustained purpose.

THANKS COL. GILLET

For Expressing His Thoughts on Government.

Winchester, Mass., March 1, 1921. To the Editor, Kingston Freeman.

May I thank Col. Ransom H. Gillett through the columns of The Freeman for saying some things that need to be said.

If the hills and vales of my birth-home in Ulster county echo and re-echo any sentiment of the plain God-fearing (the only fear they know) farmers I knew as a boy, I find it in the following words of Colonel Gillett:

"I believe we are governed too much. There is not a man here but knows what it means to have the heavy hand of bureaucracy come in to your personal affairs and tell you what you shall and shall not do. Do you realize that the time when it has been even in my lifetime—when all we recognized of the federal government were the post offices. We never in those days saw the glint of federal bayonets in our streets to regulate our people."

Where will you find youth better trained for duties of citizenship than under the hand and eye of the farmers of Ulster county? Such was my portion as a boy. The recollection of that training, the guide and mainstay of my more mature manhood. That training was based on, and in sympathy with the principle "that government is best which governs least."

Having received my college training at the hands of the federal government at a land grant college and my post graduate course taken under the instruction of my youth—the plain farmers of Ulster—I think I understand the nature of an oath. From my personal experience with some of the "stinking bayonets" (for the ones I have encountered are a stench in the nostrils of the men who know) of the federal internal revenue service, they are not fit to hold office unless it be under a star or a Louis XIV!

They talk glibly of the government, the government! May I speak with pardonable emphasis, "Who in hell is the government?"

Cusack, O'Donnell and McCloskey trying for two years to prove a plain New Hampshire farmer named "Shutts" a liar, may be interesting for them and they may have seemed to have won!

However, "the race is not always to the swift nor the battle to the strong." The Catekills from this distance seem to say: "Nor was here the bad lesson learned at human rights to sneer." NEWTON SHULTIS.

PNEUMONIA NOT YET AT PEAK

Pneumonia, which regularly begins to increase each year as soon as cold weather causes closed windows, has not yet reached its peak for the season according to a report issued by the State Department of Health.

A study of the facts warrants the belief that as people change from the summer conditions of pure moist outdoor air to the excessively dry, vitiated, overheated air of indoors with less exercise and more intensive work, the general tone of the body lowers, and the air passages are no longer able to withstand the germs of common colds, pneumonia and other respiratory diseases.

The germs of pneumonia are almost always found in the mouths of those who have been in close association with pneumonia patients and quite commonly in the noses and throats of others. Whether a person develops pneumonia or not depends partly on the violence of the pneumonia organisms that may find their way to his air passages but largely on the state of health of the individual and whether his natural resistance to disease has been lowered by over exertion, fatigue, exposure to cold and dampness or to other influences that upset the body tone. Colds, excessively dry, overheated air renders the lining of the air passages especially susceptible to the action of disease germs. One attack of pneumonia may predispose a person to other attacks and often arouses latent tuberculosis.

Probably the most important general condition which facilitates the spread of the infectious organism of pneumonia is the crowding of people into close personal contact in small tenement rooms, cars, and meeting places.

The most important safeguards are the maintenance of sanitary conditions in the home and attention to personal cleanliness including frequent cleansing of the teeth and especially of the throat and pharynx by gargling with hot water or simple non-irritating solutions. Strong antiseptic solutions often irritate and inflame the mucous membranes thereby favoring the development of the infectious agents that are so often present even in the throats of healthy persons.

To escape pneumonia, it is first necessary to keep the body in good condition by plenty of fresh air, exercise and sleep, a sufficient amount of good food and the avoidance of conditions which run down the health or put the body forces under a strain. Close association with persons who have been in contact with pneumonia patients is inadvisable, while the vicinity of those who cough and sneeze without covering the nose and throat with a handkerchief should be shunned.

The Catekills.

I stood upon the mountain top
Where legends old of a vanished race
Proclaimed this the earthly resting place
Of the great spirit Manitou.
'Twas told the legends told
That fountains sparkling clear and pure
Dripping from moss grown rock or shaded cave
Was fed from tears that angels shed
On earth in pity for the Red Man's woes

The fleecy clouds that hang upon the mountains' brow
Hide from mortal eye the spirits there
The breeze that whispers through the pines
Are fanned by angels' wings.
Well suited are these ancient legends
To this high and wondrous spot.
Here the sun lights the first diamond
Of the dew
The wild flower first kissed by early dawn

If this was all the universe
That here lies within the range of mortal eye
Its varied beauties are enough
That great Manitou abiding here
Could smile serene content
Upon this fair dwelling place
He gave to mortal man.
The rare who killed these legends
Sacred now are passed
A restless race have followed in their stead

Who have many changes wrought
But nature's beauty still remains.
Low in the valley where once the virgin forest grew
Now grows the field of waving grain
Where the red deer in safety
Roams
Now are meadow lands where graze
The beasts made servants of mankind

Upon the gentle slope where fragrant wild flowers bloomed
Now bloom the peach, the apple or the rose.
Far beyond the lesser mountains rise
In graceful eminence outlined
Against the sky
And the fair lakes gleam among the hills

On whose mirrored breasts
Reflecting back the glories of the star lit firmament
The lowly willow or the giant pine
The far reaches of the majestic Hudson

Sparkling waters gathered from mirrored fountain of the hills
And from a thousand mountain brooks
Flowing with incomparable beauty
Among orchards, fields and mountain crag

On to its destiny
At evening time when the sun is sinking down the west
Tinting the western sky with all the shades of light
As though to tell the colorless
With which to paint the domes of paradise

And strolling out thy meadow shade
As far as Katskill
My soul is lifted up in thanks and praise
Thou hast my home and hearth—
Thou hast my life in life in case I
That I am here

SOMETHING DOING IN THE BACK ROOM

The great question before the Automobile Dealers' Association at its last meeting was what to do with the Eagle Garage display at the big show in the armory on March 31, April 1 and 2. By some oversight no space had been reserved for their exhibit in the main room, but that will not deter "The garage with a conscience" from making an exhibit that will be a feature of the show, as Mack of the Eagle declares that he is going to have a display that will draw the crowd to it wherever it is, even on the roof or in the cellar. It was finally decided to coop the Eagle up in one of the small rooms on the main floor, whereupon Mack became so active and positive in declaring the attraction of his exhibit that the automobile dealers are proving a bit afraid that visitors to the show will find the Eagle so attractive that they will spend all of their time with it. There's a mystery about the nature of the attraction and guesses range all the way from an exclusive hotel privilege downward to a surprise that perhaps the Eagle is going to exhibit its conscience.

SOCIETY NOTES.

A birthday dinner was tendered Mrs. Martha V. Basley of Montclair, N. J., Monday evening at the winter home of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Burgher, 21 Crown street, formerly of Boltonville. Covers were laid for ten and all the features of the event were enjoyed.

Little Miss Marie Galvin of 192 O'Neil street was hostess to twenty of her little friends Tuesday evening in honor of her eighth birthday. She charmingly entertained her guests with games, and Miss Helen Gentile sang very sweetly. "Margarita" accompanied on the piano by Miss Muriel Van Gaasbeck. In the dining room dainty refreshments were served, the table decorations being pink and white. Miss Galvin was voted a royal hostess by her friends on their departure.

On the occasion of his forty-seventh birthday a most delightful surprise party was tendered Clarence Van Derzee, Sr., at his home, No. 63 East Pierpont street, Wednesday, March 2. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Howard LaTour and son, Kenneth, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Van Derzee, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walker and daughters, Virginia and Elizabeth, Sylvester Van Derzee, Miss Anna Van Derzee, Miss Florence King, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Van Derzee and daughter, Jane, and sons, Clarence and Henry. Mr. Van Derzee was the recipient of many valuable presents. At an early hour in the morning, the guests departed wishing Mr. Van Derzee many more happy birthdays and declaring him a most delightful host.

Riley-Rhode.
Grace Rhode and William Riley were married February 23 by the Rev. Hayward A. Seaman, pastor of the Methodist Church at Plattekill.

Faulkner-Moss.
Elmer E. Faulkner of New Kingston and Mrs. Caroline B. Moss of No. 103 Clinton avenue were united in marriage on February 26 in New York city by the Rev. John McNeill. They will reside in New Kingston.

Atharhacton Club.
Mrs. Stelle entertained the Atharhacton Club on Wednesday of this week and had the paper for the day, her subject being "My Past—Constance Lottiche." Added interest was given to the paper by the readings which Mrs. Stelle gave from the book mentioned. All Atharhacton members present, and those absent by proxy, signed the appeal to the mayor asking for the appointment of a woman on the board of education when the next appointments are to be made. The club will meet next week with Miss Holmes at her home on East Chester street.

Lowell Club.
The Lowell Club held its postponed meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Brichman. Mrs. Everett had the paper for the day, her subject "Three Modern Dramatists: Lord Dunsany, John Drinkwater and William Butler Yeats," being exceedingly full of interest. This was followed by a reading from one of William Butler Yeats's plays, "Kathleen Ni Houlihan," given by Mrs. Wonderly. Mrs. Dero and Mrs. Lewis then read the play, "The Lost Silk Hat," by Dunsany, and the afternoon's program closed with a reading from Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln." During the business session the petition prepared by the Parent-Teachers Association asking the mayor to appoint a woman on the board of education to fill the coming vacancy, was presented and signed by club members. Next week the club will meet with Miss Fuller.

The Shipley's Broken Chain.
Today the famous Shipley, giving the Roadster truck between Roadster and Chatham, had her main chain broken, and while a new chain was being installed the ferry was run with the side chain, and only few passengers carried for several trips on the single chain was not strong enough to pull the ferry clear enough to the dock for vehicles to board the boat.

Church of Comforters Services.
Preparatory services will be held at the Church of the Comforters this evening at 7:30 o'clock. A short address will be made by the pastor and a hymn sung will be given by Miss Mary Wright. All those who expect to join the church next Sunday are asked to be present if possible, and all members of the church are invited to attend.

Overlook Blue Room.
While Alfred DeGard of Glenford was dining at the Overlook, a fire of blue smoke was discovered.

AMENDMENTS TO MILLER DRY BILLS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, March 3.—Final amendments were made to the governor's state prohibition enforcement bills in the senate today by their introducer, Senator Mullin. One amendment allows a man to transfer, legally, liquor from one house to another without a permit. Under it a householder can take his liquor from his winter to his summer home without applying to the prohibition authorities.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

In Surrogates' Court the last will and testament of Elizabeth A. Bloom, deceased, late of the town of Marlborough, has been admitted to probate. The value of the estate is $400 real; $1,500 personal. The beneficiaries are the husband, the daughters, sons and grandchildren. V. B. VanWagonen is the attorney for the petitioner.

The last will and testament of Orden F. Winne, deceased, late of the City of Kingston, which was filed Wednesday, the provisions of which have been published, was admitted to probate today. The value of the estate is given as to exceed $5,000 real; and to exceed $5,000 personal. Virgil B. VanWagonen is the attorney for the petitioner. Jennie D. Winne and Virgil B. VanWagonen, the executors and trustees. Surrogate Kaufman has issued a decree assessing and fixing the tax under the taxable transfer act, on the appraisal of James Lounsbury, county treasurer, appraiser, of the estate of Frank L. Bloom, deceased. Total value of estate, $11,888.80; debts, costs of administration, &c., $1,198.92; leaving a net estate of $10,689.87. Person entitled to estate, Anna B. Gorzon. Tax $56.70. Van Etten & Cook represented the estate in the proceedings; Andrew J. Cook the state comptroller.

A Successful Year.
The Ladies' Aid Society of the St. James Methodist Episcopal Church held its annual meeting in the church parlor on Wednesday afternoon. There was a larger attendance than ever before in the history of the society. The reports read revealed growth in membership and wonderful activities. In various ways and at different times the society had earned between fourteen hundred and fifteen hundred dollars this year. After all its disbursements there was a balance in the treasurer's hands of over nine hundred dollars. The sum of one hundred dollars was unanimously voted to help toward some needed improvements on the district parsonage on Franklin street. All the officers were re-elected. With Mrs. E. L. Angle as the president. It is a society that is growing all the time and is united in spirit and in loyalty to the church.

Cold Day for Inaugural.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, March 3.—It's going to be a cold inauguration day, the Weather Man declares. A special Washington forecast says "the outlook is for fair and considerably colder weather, with temperature close to freezing and fresh west and northwest winds in Washington, March 4."

Movie Censorship Certain.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, March 3.—New York state will establish a moving picture censorship. This became practically certain today when Governor Miller threw his support to a measure now before the legislature proposing establishment of a censorship commission.

The mass meeting of colored citizens which was to have been held to-morrow night at St. Mark's A. M. E. Church has been postponed to March 11.

Automobile License Bill Passed.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, March 3.—The senate today passed the low man bill, requiring a license for all automobiles in the state.

Perils Sail Carried to Ocean.
The total annual rainfall upon all the land of the globe amounts to 23,347 cubic miles, according to the United States geological survey, and of this quantity, 4,224 cubic miles drains off through rivers to the sea. A cubic mile of water weighs about 2,580,000,000 pounds and carries in solution an average of about 420,000 tons of foreign matter. In all about 2,120,000,000 tons of solid matter is thus carried annually to the ocean, and a good deal of this is actually the fertilizer washed from the fields.

FISHES WITH FORKED TAILS

Shape of the Rear Fin Has Important Relation to the Creature's Swimming Abilities.

Most marine animals which swim, especially swiftly and continuously, have a forked tail fin. This shape of tail avoids the space immediately behind the axis of the body where the stream lines following the sides (of a moving fish) converge. A rounded or pointed tail which would occupy such area would be a drag. Whales and porpoises, though they move the tail up and down instead of from side to side, have a forked tail fin, only it lies in a horizontal instead of a vertical plane. The wide-ranging members of the mackerel family and other more or less related marine fishes have a forked tail fin set on a firm, narrow base; and the freest-swimming sharks (mackerel sharks and the mackerel) have acquired a tail of the same shape, though the ordinary shark tail is weak and unsymmetrical.

Fresh-water minnows almost invariably have a forked tail fin, waters which they have to traverse being considerable in relation to the small size of the fishes themselves.—Dr. John T. Nichols in the National Geographic Magazine.

SUN HAS LOST MUCH HEAT

Millions of Years Ago Illuminary Was Ten Times Larger and as Much Hotter.

Our sun has not always been the size that it is now. In the remote past, a past measured by millions of years, it was at least ten times bigger and brighter! As there was a considerable amount of cloud about in those far-off days, one can imagine what glorious sunsets a break in the clouds would reveal.

Whether the climate was much better then than it is now is by no means certain, because, apart from the cloudiness of the sky screening so much sunlight, there are other matters upon which the question of warmth depends.

There is a limit to the size of our sun, or of any sun we see shining as a star in the night sky. Any of these bodies could grow to such a size that if it got any bigger it would burst. In the case of a sun, Nature steps in and saves it from blowing itself to pieces by internal pressure.

COTTONWOOD IN DEMAND.

Farmers of British Columbia are making good use of their cottonwood trees. Recent experiments have shown that the buds of the local species are equal to eastern varieties in their properties, and the gathering of these buds promises to develop into a thriving industry in certain parts of the province. Few are engaged yet, but it is expected that an exhaustive summary of the cottonwood areas will reveal a field for a large number of workers. Farmers are receiving 50 cents a bushel for the buds, which have been shipped by the carload to manufacturing druggists in eastern Canada.

HISTORY OF THE SIRLOIN.

The sirloin of beef which graced many a Christmas table this year in lieu of the too costly turkey, is said to have acquired its knightly title from Henry VIII, who, in delight at a magnificent piece of the overloin, laid his sword upon its steaming surface. Later sovereigns have been credited with the same act, namely James I and the second Charles. Only a few years ago a painter of note exhibited in the Royal academy, London, a picture of Charles II in the act of conferring the distinction on the fortunate joint.

REWARD OF MERIT.

He was reading some general orders in a nondescript French billet. "Listen," he said. "Remember that lieutenant who was always coming round trying to get in with the captain? Well, he's just been awarded the croix de guerre with two palms. Wonder how he got it. Two palms, Cash?" "Hardscrabble!" replied his companion briefly.—The American Legion Weekly.

TITLE CHASING.

"Do you think people are chasing titles as much as they used to?" "None," answered Miss O'Connor. "The titles are the most striking features of the nation picture plays."

Vast Riches in Cornstock Lode.
The Cornstock lode produced $300,000,000 of gold and silver in the 30-year period from 1860 to 1890, the largest annual output being in 1877, when $30,000,000 was taken out. The vein was four miles in length and great pockets in the rocks were filled with ore. It was mined to a depth of 3,500 feet, when flowing water was so hot further depths could not be reached.

DIST. GOVERNOR VISITS ROTARY

The Rev. Lee Reynolds Talks of Serious Purposes and "Divine Damfoolishness" of the Organization—Other Visitors Include Warden of State Reformatory.

An official visit from District Governor Lee Reynolds of Newark, N. J., was the attraction at the Rotary Club luncheon on Wednesday, but as the district governor got in some way "delayed in transmission" and arrived too late to get anything to eat, a number of visitors and new members divided the honors with him. Before Mr. Reynolds arrived, Judge Grant of Stamford, Rotarian Beale of Newburgh, Warden Thayer of Nanuet, Judge Murray of Millville and Newton H. Fennenden of this city had briefly responded to calls for a few remarks and four new members, Dr. Mark O'Leary, J. De-Boy Hachrouk, Robert R. Rodie and Harry Wicher, had been introduced and had made their prettiest bows to the club.

District Governor Reynolds complimented the Kingston Rotarians on their 100 per cent meeting, the telegram announcing its success having been the first of its kind he had received. Speaking of the principles and work of Rotary, Mr. Reynolds, who is a very sedate, precise and dignified Presbyterian clergyman, said that the greatest field for work was in making true Rotarians of Rotary Club members, which was something like making Christians of church members. The attitude of many members reminded him of a man he knew, very fond of talking about the many distinguished Presbyterians among his ancestors, who once said, "I may not be very much of a Christian but I'm a—of a good Presbyterian."

Rotary, said Mr. Reynolds, is more than a social organization or luncheon club. It has a serious purpose to teach and practice the value of service—of the Golden Rule in business, in politics, in society. Something is needed to set the world right, to bring about understanding and justice. I once thought the League of Nations might do it, but I am changing my mind. The propagating of the spirit of the Golden Rule, as Rotary is spreading and practicing it, seems to be the means to a great end. And, with all its serious purposes, there is in Rotary that which the Rev. Dr. Newton described the other day "a divine damfoolishness" that leaves the work, holds us together and renews in us the zest and seal of youth. Owing to the lateness of the District Governor's arrival the meeting was prolonged a half hour beyond the usual time, but everyone present would gladly have listened to the speaker for another hour.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Simple Dress For a Small Child. Pattern 3393 developed this attractive model. It is cut in 5 sizes: 6 months, 1 year, 2, 3 and 4 years. Chambray, lawn, calico, challis, linen, crash, voile, silk, serge and mixture, also gingham, and poplin are nice for a dress of this kind. As illustrated, blue chambray was used, with trimming of white Indian head, finished with blanket stitching. It will require 2 1/2 yards of 27 inch material for a 2 year size. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or 1c and 3c stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Room 201, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

Send 15 cents in silver or stamps for our up-to-date spring and summer 1921 Catalogue, containing over 500 designs of ladies', misses' and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article of dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various, simple stitches), all valuable to the home dressmaker.

SAMSONVILLE.

Samsonville, March 3.—Several of our people attended the funeral of Mrs. Clara Merriam at her home in Kraville on Saturday. Our church has lost one of its loved and loyal members, although on account of failing health she was not able to attend church. Her heart was always in the work. Her pastor, the Rev. G. W. Thompson, paid a fine tribute to her Christian character to which all her friends can testify, and she will be greatly missed by this church for she was always ready to help in every possible way.

Mrs. Madred Neve returned home on Wednesday from her visit to her sister in Kansas and her friend near New York.

Mrs. Melvin Harringer is ill of the grip.

Mrs. Fred Haver is ill under the care of Dr. Diamond of Olive Bridge.

Mrs. Irvin Harringer is suffering with rheumatism.

Mrs. Adeline Van Kleeck has returned home from Tabasco.

Size Up Your Condition. Look at the Facts Squarely

It Pays To Have Good Health

Most Diseases Are Prevented by a Good Supply of Rich, Red Blood Take Pepto-Mangan, the Red Blood Builder

Either you are in good health or you are not. There's no half way. You may think nothing of being a little run down. It may not worry you if you look pale. You may think you'll be all right tomorrow or next day. But will you?

Certain it is when you do not feel just right, you are not right. There is probably something the matter with your blood. And while you can get around and do your work you are leaving yourself open to any of the diseases that are always waiting to take possession of run down people.

When you are pale and easily tired, when you cannot enjoy your meals, when you lose enthusiasm, your blood needs attention.

Take Pepto-Mangan for awhile. It is a great tonic. It will build up your resistance to disease, and you will soon feel stronger. The little red corpuscles are fighters. They battle with disease germs and win out when there are enough of them. Keep your system well supplied. Then you will keep well and you will enjoy life.

But be certain you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan. Ask for it by the full name—"Gude's Pepto-Mangan." Some people take it in tablet form. It is so convenient. The liquid and the tablets have the same medicinal value. Look for the name "Gude's" on the package.—Advertisement.

Oh, the Grip!

There has been a curious amount of pneumonia in the district, which centered around the relative virtue and accomplishments of the two sexes. "You men," said the advanced young women, "think a great deal of yourselves because you think there is a shortage of your kind. Personally, I should not mind in the least being in a world where the men and girls were supported by an arm." The daring bachelor smiled at her. "I dare say you are right," he agreed. "Still, in the event you mention, I'm certain that there would be a large number of women drowned."—London, Morning Post.

UTO OPERATORS BILL TO PASS

Objectors Place Dollar Above Human Life—Moving on Increased Auto Fees March 16.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, March 3.—Senator Seymour Lowman of Elmira, chairman of the senate internal affairs committee, and Assemblyman George F. Wheelock of Leicester, chairman of the assembly internal affairs committee, to which committee measures affecting the operation of automobiles are referred, are able and conscientious allies of the New York State Automobile Association in its constant efforts to prevent discriminatory legislation against the automobile owners of the state in the form of compulsory insurance and bonds in the sum of $10,000; compensation for equipment of patent mechanical devices and such measures. Senator Lowman and Assemblyman Wheelock are also supporting the efforts of the State Automobile Association to reduce as much as possible the annual increasing need for sacrifice of human life and property on the altar of hairbrained schemes and incompetency in the operation of automobiles on the streets and highways of this state which totaled up 1,478 lives for the year of 1929.

Senator Lowman's committee will report out for passage this week the State Automobile Association bill providing for state-wide licensing of all operators, $1 fee without renewal, good until suspended or revoked, limiting minimum age of operator to 15 years under all circumstances, three consecutive ten day permits for beginners under competent instructors. This measure will provide the only means to identify every man or woman at the wheel of an automobile in this state and is certain to have a most wholesome effect in compelling carefulness under the penalty of revocation and deprivation, and will also tend to prevent wholesale theft of cars such as has been going on during the last two or three years.

At the hearing on this bill February 16, the Automobile Club of America, the Motor Truck Club of America, the Police Magistrates Association, John J. Lynn, secretary of state, Judge W. Bruce Cobb of New York city traffic court, and other prominent public officials endorsed this bill as a most necessary, safe and sane measure for the operation of automobiles and the conservation of human life. Each senator and assemblyman is being requested by the 112 local automobile clubs of the State Automobile Association to lead every effort to facilitate the passage of this measure.

The sole opposition has come from representatives of the Rochester and Watertown Automobile Clubs, and the sole reason given for the opposition was the "excessive" cost of $1 for the license. Human life, evidently having no standing in the equation with the dollar, so far as these objectors are concerned.

At the same hearing representatives of the Rochester Automobile Club advocated compulsory insurance for automobile owners and mechanical signaling devices.

Representatives of 132 local automobile clubs of the State Automobile Association will hold a special meeting at the Ten Eyck Hotel at Albany, Wednesday morning, March 16th, at 10 o'clock at which the Lowman bill to increase fees and such other automobile legislation as may have been introduced by that date will be discussed and concerted action decided upon. A new compensation bill, also another $10,000 bond or insurance bill has been introduced since the hearing of February 16, as result of which these measures were effectual.

The New York State Automobile Association is unalterably opposed to any increase in license fees until, at least, such time as all of these fees are used in the maintenance of our highways.

A. H. Maloney, chairman of the Goods Roads committee of the association, said today that it never was the intention of the legislature or the automobile owners, when the fee system was established in 1909 to compel the motorists to construct the roads and maintain them at the same time.

Under the present law automobiles paid into the state treasury last year the sum of $5,862,772. Of this sum, 25% or $2,212,192 was returned to the counties leaving a gross revenue of $3,649,580. The cost to administer the functions of the automobile bureau of the secretary of state's office was approximately $625,000, leaving a balance of approximately $3,024,580 for the maintenance of about 3,499 miles of state road during 1931.

The finance committee of the legislature has estimated that the proposed increase in license fees will bring about $1,000,000 to the state treasury during 1932, and with the probable construction of about 500 miles of state highways during 1932, making a total of about 3,999 miles of state highways, and a total of about $2,024,580 for the maintenance thereof, on the basis of $1,000 per mile.

But 25%, or $2,250,000 of this estimated total of $9,000,000 will be returned to the counties, unless the present law is repealed, and the finance committee will come again next year and demand that the association make up this deficiency. And the State Automobile Association is about up its forces for a fight to a finish on any such proposition—because or no reason, because the 25% of the fees which are now returned to the counties, are for most part distributed in small amounts to all over the state and relate to no one thing in any one except some local politician.

WOULD RETAIN GAME PROTECTORS

State Sportsmen Protest Fearon's Scheme Which Would Do Away With Them and Leave Their Duties to State Police Who Know Nothing of Work and May Be Called Anywhere For Other Duties.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Utica, N. Y., March 3.—Sportsmen and fishermen throughout New York state are up in arms against a bill introduced into the legislature by Senator Fearon, which would abolish the state game protectors and transfer their duties to the state police, according to W. S. French, president of the New York State Fish, Game and Forest League. The league represents over 40,000 organized sportsmen, every one of whom, he says, is absolutely opposed to disrupting the state's game protective organization, which has gradually been built up to its present efficiency over a period of forty years, and turning over the enforcement of the game laws to the already overburdened state police.

In a statement issued today from his home in New Hartford, Mr. French declares that, whereas the state troopers are efficient in their own field, there is no evidence that they are fitted for the specialized work of game protectors, and that they are already fully occupied with their present duties.

"A concrete example as to what would happen if the state police were charged with the enforcement of the conservation law," he states, "is offered by the strike of the employees of the United Traction Company in Albany, Troy, Watertown, Cohoes and Rensselaer, where the state police have been called to prevent rioting and destruction of property. In such a case of emergency, with the state police from a large area concentrated in cities for special police duty, the fish and game would be left inadequately protected and at the mercy of the lawless element, who would be quick to take advantage of such a situation to kill off valuable wild life which it had required years of protective work to conserve."

life which it had required years of protective work to conserve.

"As a measure of economy, any such change would show on the wrong side of the ledger, as, according to the appropriation bill, a troop of costs the state approximately $1.60 per day more than a game protector. The sportsmen of this state pay in their license fees practically the total cost of the 131 state game protectors, and under these circumstances it would seem that they should be allowed to choose the instrument for giving protection to that which they value so highly."

"Even apart from the conservation of fish, game and fur-bearing animals from an economic standpoint alone we cannot afford to have this protective force abolished, as, if they did nothing but protect insectivorous birds alone, this would be worth much more than it costs for without the birds it would be impossible to raise a grain crop in this state."

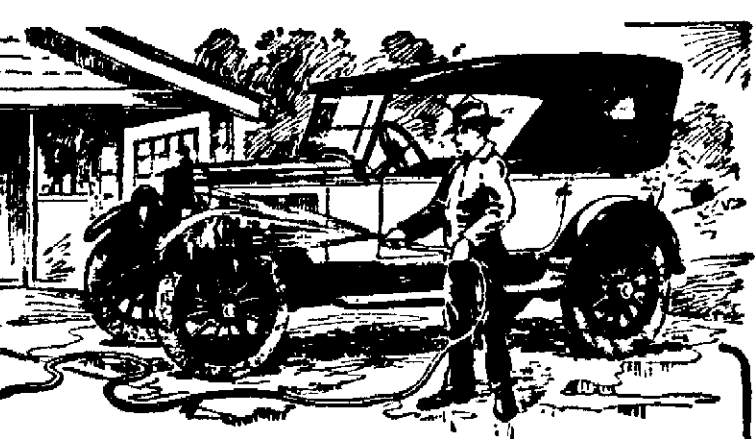

"Some years ago an endeavor was made to have the state constabulary of Pennsylvania assist in the work of game protection, the idea being that they could thus reduce the protective force, but the plan proved a failure and was abandoned. The state police are necessarily near the congested centers, thickly populated districts and on the main highways, but our protectors are in the fields and woods an entirely different matter, and to my mind they can never successfully be combined."

“DAUGHTER OF THE SUN” TONIGHT

The world renowned beach at Waikiki Oahu, out from Honolulu, is undoubtedly in a class by itself. The coral reef prevents the rush of water with its killing force. Here is the daily bathing place of the City of Honolulu. Here one can see the expert native Hawaiian swimmer ride the incoming surf on a board. It looks most simple and easy but to the novice it very often happens to be a most hazardous task. The native seems to belong in the water as much as upon land for they are expert swimmers.

The latest play to deal with Hawaii is “A Daughter of the Sun,” the story of a Hawaiian butterfly. Out of the traditions of Old Hawaii has been gathered material rich in possibilities for a story of great fascination. A love story winds itself throughout the entire play. The producers are said to have given this play a most wonderful mounting, the first act alone having six scenes. A troupe of native Hawaiian musicians is carried and they render their peculiar native music throughout the action of the play.

“A Daughter of the Sun” will be seen at the Opera House tonight.

TAX RATES IN CITIES OF STATE

The New York State Bureau of Municipal Information has issued a report on the tax rates and assessed valuation of the cities of this state for the past year as compared with the previous year.

The report shows Kingston is a fair light. Of the fifty-nine cities only Kingston and ten other cities showed a decreased city rate, excluding the state and county tax. While the purely city rate of Kingston is lower, the total rate including the state and county tax is higher because of the city's share of the state and county taxes is so much more than the previous year.

The taxpayers should know and remember when they pay their taxes how being collected that it includes the state and county tax. The total amount being collected and raised to conduct the affairs of the different departments of the city and to administer the city affairs is less than that expended last year. The increase is due, however, to increased state and county tax and loss of revenues.

It appears from the report that many cities including Kingston, increased their respective assessments. One city, Middletown, more than doubled the total of its assessment, and thereby cut its tax rate in half. Many cities increased their assessments greatly and reduced the tax rates.

It appears that there are fifteen cities which had tax rates greater than Kingston, while forty-three cities had lower rates. The total tax rates of the various cities including education and state and county expenses were as follows:

WHERE DO SEALS GO IN WINTER?

Ancient Mystery Remains Unsolved to This Day, Says a Writer.

HERDS ARE NOW SMALLER

Formerly the Annual Kill Was 100,000, but the Law Now Bars Wholesale Slaughter—Killing Done by Natives.

Washington.—With the growing popularity of fur coats the interest in their origin is also developing, and many an owner of a handsome sealskin coat muses idly over its history before reaching for and the phases of its production. But very few are aware of a real mystery attached to the garment which is so important to the smart woman's wardrobe—for there is indeed a mystery surrounding the seal and in all the years these animals have been put to commercial use and have been under such close observation no one has ever been able to discover where they go in winter. No one yet has been able to make a record of their hiding place, according to Gas Logic, which gives something of the history of the seal.

In Alaska, the seals begin to appear on the islands of St. Paul and St. George about the end of April or the first of May,” reads the article, “and toward the latter part of August or in the first weeks of September they disappear as strangely and mysteriously as they came. This is one of Nature's secrets which she has kept most successfully hid from scientists as well as the prying eyes of the merely curious and inquisitive.

Seals Desert Islands.

“Even in the days, years ago, when the seals numbered five millions or more, apparently some signal unknown to man would be given and the next day the fog-wreathed rocks would be bare, the seals having deserted the islands. With their slipping off into Bering Sea, all trace of them was lost until their return the following spring. Then some morning they would suddenly reappear, disporting themselves in the water or on the shore.

“When the United States bought Alaska from Russia in 1867, outsiders without any rights or privileges were in the habit of going there to kill as many seals as possible. In order to prevent what might prove the extinction of the sealing industry the United States government in 1870 stopped this indiscriminate killing and leased the islands of St. Paul and St. George to the Alaska Commercial company, giving the company the right to kill 100,000 seals a year for 20 years. The islands were later leased by the government to another commercial company and the killing was cut so that it could not exceed 60,000 seals a year. In 1881 this figure was still further reduced to 15,000 a year, and since that time it has varied from 15,000 to 21,000 annually. In 1915 the United States assumed entire control of the sealing industry and it has conducted it since that time.

“In 1910 about 30,000 seals were taken for commercial use. There are now approximately 400,000 seals in Alaska and the government has taken strict measures to prevent this number from being depleted. No one not authorized by the government is allowed on the two principal seal islands except at the time of the killing, when the Aleuts or natives are permitted to go there to attend to the actual killing of the animals and the salting of their skins. The seals selected are driven slowly to shore for a mile or more, every care being taken not to alarm the rest of the herd. The process is similar to that of ambushing a company of soldiers, cutting them off completely from the rest of the regiment and disposing of them before they are missed from the lines.

Clubbed to Death.

“When the natives have arrived at the salting houses, near which they have driven the seals, they kill them by clubbing them on the head. After skinning them, the skins are heavily salted on the flesh side and put in piles of six, being arranged in three pairs, the flesh side of each skin against the flesh side of another skin. Later they are rolled in packages of four and put into crates, then shipped to San Francisco, whence they are reshipped by rail to the Eastern for exporters.

“Seals weighing less than six pounds may not be killed, according to law. Reports say that the best skins come from those sealmen between the ages of two and four years. For the first time this year some of the older seals—those from six to eight years—are to be killed as an experiment. The fur of these ‘Wags’ as the older ones are called, is coarser and not so long and soft as that of the ‘pups’ or youngsters. It takes from two to four skins for a coat, depending upon its size and style. Though it is not possible to sit on a seal pelt on the value of a seal skin, it is now about $70. An unskinned sealman of experience can tell, the best known being ‘Bullfinch’ which is dressed and dyed separately. These are the sealmen of olden tradition, who have been on the coast since the first of the seal trade, and are the only ones who are still to be seen on the coast today.

No Doubt About One Love.

“Joe” and “Mamie” were the love story of the week. “Joe” was a young man who was very much in love with “Mamie,” a young woman who was very much in love with “Joe.” They were both very much in love with each other and were very much in love with each other.

JAPANESE AVERSE TO CHANGE

Idea That They Would Take Kindly to American-Built Houses Proved to Be Wrong.

With the double hope of business success and social service, a certain firm in Japan some years ago began the importation of American-made movable houses on a large scale. The houses, the firm believed, would offer very comfortable and cozy little homes at reasonable prices to the salary-earning classes of Nippon and would bring about a great improvement in the domestic life of the Japanese.

The enterprise, well-meaning as it undoubtedly was, turned out to be a failure. It was like an overzealous but enlightened missionary trying to impose the dogmas of Christianity on heathens, regardless of the latter's ideas, temperament and history. The Japanese have their own customs, modes of living and traditions, which, irrespective of whether they be good or bad, are dear to their hearts and hard to give up in a fortnight. Homes are the most basic of institutions and house construction is the result of centuries of home life in a nation. To try to induce the Japanese to give up their houses immediately and dwell in the American-made houses is like trying to urge them to give up all Japanese ways of feeling, believing and thinking, and to adopt occidental ways of behavior. It is preposterous.—East and West News.

MEMENTOES OF GREAT ACTOR

Diary of Junius Brutus Booth and Other Interesting Relics Are Found in Old Theater.

Diaries and relics of Junius Brutus Booth, famous in the annals of the American stage, were brought to light by wreckers working on the reconstruction of the famous old Walnut Street Theater, at Philadelphia, Pa., the oldest playhouse in the United States.

Away up in the eaves, and there was no evidence to show how they were put there, were two big hampers of wicker, falling to pieces from age. The theater's manager had a ladder put up, and he and a workman started to ascend.

The ladder broke and the workman had some ribs fractured, but the hampers, when finally brought down, proved well worth the trouble. They were full of old-time treasures, a diary of the famous actor, a license for Booth's father to practice law, signed by the king of England, and a collection of old playbills and programs that are valuable today.

Alongside the hampers, resting across two beams, was a big thin slab of marble. It was found to be a lithograph, one on which were made the pictures advertising John Singer Sargent.

Are and Microscope.

Before the Royal Microscopical society in London there was described a method of photographing objects magnified by the microscope. The light of the object is itself is employed, that of the lensed object being brought to a focus on a photographic plate, and then a powerful monochromatic light, at the extreme limit of visibility, is shined.

With a light of extreme photograph of white objects under a magnification of 2,000 diameters, was made and with a light of extreme visibility, at the extreme limit of visibility, is shined.

HASBROUCK ORDER IS AFFIRMED

Appellate Division Sustains Judge in Awarding Custody of Beatrice Maxim to Addison J. Cronk.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court for the Third Department handed down a decision at Albany, on Wednesday unanimously affirming the order of Judge Hasbrouck in habeas corpus proceedings in which he awarded the custody of Beatrice Maxim of this city to her grandfather, Addison J. Cronk, a farmer of Delaware county.

The mother of the child died several years ago and the father remarried. By his second wife he had one child. Last year he died at Beacon, where he lived, and later his wife, with her own child and Beatrice, the step-child, removed to Kingston, where Mrs. Maxim's mother resides. Mrs. Maxim obtained employment and rented rooms. She cared for the two children, took them to school and returned from work early enough in the afternoon to call there for them.

Mr. Cronk, whose daughter was the mother of Beatrice, took habeas corpus proceedings for the recovery of Beatrice, whom he said he desired to bring up because he believed he was better able to care for her than her step-mother. There was no contention on Mr. Cronk's part that Beatrice was not receiving the care and affection which her step-mother said she gave, but he simply considered that he could better afford to care for her than Mrs. Maxim.

Judge Hasbrouck decided that it would be for the best interests of the child to place it in the custody of the grandfather, and from his order Mrs. Maxim appealed to the Appellate Division. The ground of appeal was that habeas corpus was not proper proceeding to secure possession of Beatrice, because she was not in any sense been restrained of her liberty and that habeas corpus could be invoked only where there was restraint or illegal possession. The Appellate Division sustained Judge Hasbrouck. In the proceedings before Judge Hasbrouck and in the Appellate Division, Mr. Cronk was represented by Frank W. Brooks; Mrs. Maxim was represented by Fowler & Loughran.

CONDENSED
CLASSICS

ON THE HEIGHTS

By BERTHOLD AUERBACH

Condensation by
Rev. R. Perry Bush, D. D.

Berthold Auerbach, German novelist, was born on the 24th of February, 1812, at Hohenhausen in the Westphalia district of Prussia. His parents were Jews and intended their son for the rabbinate, but after studying philosophy at Tubingen, Munich and Heidelberg, and becoming estranged from the Jewish orthodox by the study of Schopenhauer, he devoted himself to literature.

Auerbach's beginning was a most fortunate one, as he wrote a romance on the life of Spinoza (1837) "an interesting in itself, and so close in its adherence to fact," that it may be read with equal advantage as a novel, or as a biography. He also translated the works of Spinoza.

The author won his fame chiefly through his stories of peasant life in the Black Forest, in which he wrote "On the Heights," and other romances, and a more speculative and philosophical tendency, turning upon plots invented by himself; but with the exception of "On the Heights," which has always been a great favorite, these romances were not very popular.

Auerbach died at Cannes, France, on the 10th of February, 1882. A list of his works contains "Dichter und Kaufmann," "Schwarzwälder Dorfgeschichten," "Balthazar," "Hohenhausen," "Das Leben am Rhein" and a number of others.

A GERMAN court. A king stately of bearing and of good report. A queen sweet and beautiful, but abhorring those who in the least digress from the straight and narrow path, and intent above all else in preserving her own immaculate purity.

The lady of the bedchamber, Countess Irma von Widenort, daughter of a noble sire, who spent his life in improving his domains and serving his neighbors, but who lived alone and self-centered, leaving his children to grow up with little of his advice and not too much expression of his affection. Dr. Gunther, physician to the queen, a man straightforward and truthful, whose wife and daughters never appeared at court.

These, with Countess Brinkenstein, the high-priestess of etiquette and decorum; Bruno, Countess Irma's brother, and others who appear less prominently, were the characters, the intermingling of whose lives furnishes a story of the exploiting of sin, full of warning to those who are on the brink of wrongdoing and replete with suggestion to the self-sanctified.

The story opens with the birth of a prince in the royal household. A nurse from the Highlands is found in Walpurga, wife of Hansel, an humble peasant, whom the queen kissed upon her arrival, and this being so contrary to the etiquette of the court, is taken up by the scandal-mongers and recorded in the newspapers, offending the king and awakening his thought that the queen is weak and sentimental.

Countess Irma, because of her official position, has access at all times to the young prince's apartments and it is soon apparent that she is fast attaining royal favor. One day the king lays his hand upon her and looks at her in such a manner that Walpurga tells her it is improper, but is advised to attend to her own affairs, and the countess writing to a friend, boasts that the king prefers her above all others and that he has given her a feather from an eagle that he shot.

Later, when they are alone together, the king asks the countess, if when they are by themselves, he may call her his "true comrade" and makes remarks implying that the queen and he are not in closest harmony.

The devotion of his wife, however, is abundantly attested by a mighty struggle through which she passes. She was a Protestant and the king a Catholic and out of love to him she resolves to give up her religion, her husband of pleasing his majesty, this only makes him angry because he takes it to be another token of her weakness, and he tells Dr. Gunther to dissuade her from such a course. He at last sends her every day to Countess Irma, who is flattered, but away down in her heart she is offended, and she writes her friend that she feels herself altogether alone in the world.

Soon after this the king goes on a hunting trip and he asks the queen to have the countess write to him about the hunt. The queen begins to be suspicious of her husband and the scandal concerning the relation of the king and Irma increases. In the midst of the turmoil, the countess is called home to her father, but he and she did not understand each other, and when—after a while—a letter signed by the king and the ladies of the court requests that she return to them, Irma after some hesitation complies, and one day near a statue of liberty for which the countess was the model, the king clings to her in his arms and imparts the "kiss of eternity" upon her lips. Later at a ball he tells her that she is beautiful and that he loves her, and she remains betrothed with the thought that "the jewel gave him to the queen but nature gave him to her." At an opportune moment her brother Bruno tells her that her actions are the talk of the town and the best way out of the matter is for her to get married. Colonel von Bronnen, a noble courtier, proposes to her but is rejected, and the countess begins to realize that: "It is hell to be conscious of guilt and yet remain beside a pure and happy creature."

In the meantime, Walpurga completes her term of service, and before leaving for home calls upon Irma, who gives her a bag of gold won at the gaming table the night before.

In the little village in the Highlands, every one at first patronized Walpurga and Hansel, but receiving no favors at their hands, the people show that human nature is the same there as at court, for they circulate all sorts of scandalous tales concerning them, but when the happy couple purchased an extensive "freehold" the good wishes of all their old friends go with them to their new abode. At this juncture, some one at court writes to Irma's father, informing him that she is "the king's mistress" and at the news he is fatally stricken, but before he passes away he presses his hand to his daughter's brow and she interprets the act as setting there the mark of Cain and wears a bandage over it forever after.

Irma is now in a terrible state of mind and when the king writes to her: "I alone can kiss away the shadows that cloud your brow" it only increases her desperation and she resolves upon suicide.

She writes thus to the queen: "I expiate my crime in death." And to the king: "We are treading the wrong path. You belong not to yourself alone, but to your people. Death is my expiation for sin. Life must be yours. God knows we did not mean to do wrong."

On the way to end her life, the countess meets a pitiable woman who had been ruined by her brother, Bruno. This woman drowns herself in the lake and Irma stumbles on, bruised and bewildered, and is found by Walpurga and Hansel on their journey to their newly purchased freehold. Conceiving her identity from all but Walpurga, she accompanies the party to their mountain home.

Report of the countess' death soon spreads abroad and search is made for her body, but no trace of it is found, yet a tablet is erected by the lake bearing this inscription: "Here lies Irma, Countess of Widenort, in the twenty-first year of her life. Traveler, pray for and honor her memory."

Back at court, the king upon receiving Irma's letter is deeply repentant and saddened by the reflection that "there is no greatness without morality." He goes to the queen's room to ask her forgiveness, but she is full of bitterness and feigns to be asleep and later she vents her spite and vituperation upon him.

The king thinks that Dr. Gunther is responsible for this, and the physician is discharged and goes back to live in his old home in the Highlands.

For three years Irma lives with Walpurga, supposedly dead, but really exalting her sins and so growing in sweetness and purity, that all who enter her presence look upon her as an angel and are lifted and inspired.

At length on a day when the king and queen and the court are at a nearby village, Irma fatally ill, sends for Dr. Gunther, who hastens to her side and placing his hand upon her forehead pronounces this benediction: "In your father's name I bless you and with this I kiss away your burdens. You are free."

Walpurga hastens to the queen who is now stricken with self-condemnation for her hateful spirit and her unjust pride in her own virtue. She realizes that Irma's penance is one through which she herself ought to pass and when she reaches the shepherd's hut there is mutual forgiveness.

The king has been hunting in the vicinity. Since receiving Irma's letter, he has lived a manly life, and in penitence has sought to promote the welfare of all his people. Word is conveyed to him of what is taking place, and he rides with all haste, but arrives on the scene only to find that the countess has passed away; but his heart leaps with joy when the queen turns to him with the cry: "Forgive me, Kurt. You have expiated. You—alone. She—alone." Her majesty takes out an amulet, which she has worn next to her heart. It is the betrothal ring the king had given her and he puts it again upon her finger and clasps her in his arms.

The countess was laid at rest at early dawn. Down in the valley the king and queen were reading her journal. "They gazed at the rosy dawn and lifted their eyes to the mountains—where Irma had been buried. On the Heights.

SIXTH PLACE GOOD ENOUGH FOR COBB

(By Jack Voleck.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 2.—Sixth place in the American League pennant race will satisfy Ty Cobb this year.

He has hopes, however, that his team may do better.

If Detroit manages to finish better than sixth, Cobb says he will feel thankful and will be ready to pay his respect to "Lady Luck."

The newly-appointed manager of the Tigers is making no predictions. In a telegraphed interview with the writer today, he modestly tells of his plans for the coming season. He advances no claims for his team.

"As to my expectations regarding what Detroit may accomplish this year I have very little," says Cobb. "We have about the same team that finished seventh in the 1920 pennant race. There is nothing I could do in the way of making changes, trades, and the like, for the simple reason that the men who did not do so well last year may be more successful under different conditions this year. As a result, I must wait and find out the men who will attain themselves to my methods. If I should discover after two months or so that certain players can not deliver the goods, then I would go about making changes."

"Last year we finished seventh. This year I hope to be able to finish at least sixth. If we should be lucky enough to finish a little higher I would feel very thankful."

"I have never claimed anything for our club or myself as a manager. I am simply going to do my best and finish just as high as I can. One thing sure, we will endeavor to let the opposition know that they are in a ball game every day."

"I hope to show a decided improvement in the pitching staff. Detroit has lacked consistent pitching for a number of years and this department is going to be given a lot of my attention."

"As to training I have decided to do away with the double period system morning and afternoon. I will have a real hard, snappy practice, once each day. Also plenty of hitting practice, probably divided into two squads, the regulars and recruits. I have a few more ideas regarding training and other things that I will put into practice but am not ready at this time to discuss them."

Cobb's efforts as manager of the "Bengals" will be watched with keen interest by fans throughout the country. For fifteen years he has been the outstanding, all-around star of baseball and his debut as a manager and whether or not managerial duties will affect his playing will hold the attention of the baseball public.

CHEERFULNESS

Learn to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine. Learn how to tell a story. A well-told story is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sick room. Learn to keep your own troubles to yourself. This world is too busy to care for your life and sorrows.

Learn to stop creaking. If you cannot see any good in the world, keep the lid to yourself. Learn to hide your pain and other unpleasant smiles. No one cares to hear whether you have the ear-ache, headache or rheumatism.

Don't cry. Tears do well enough in novels, but are out of place in real life. Learn to meet your friends with a smile. A good humored man or woman is always welcome, but the dyspeptic or hyperbolic is not wanted anywhere, and is a nuisance as well.

Above all, give pleasure. Even an chance of giving pleasure, you will pass through the world but once. Any good thing, therefore, that you can do, or any kindness that you can show to any human being, you had better do it now; do not defer or neglect it, for you will not pass this way again.
